

Help Scout intake form Testing.Agency assessment

Test Description

This assignment is to check your Javascript and CSS skills and your ability to follow a briefing.

With Testing.Agency we create A/B-tests for our clients, this are basically variations of their live site that we tweak by loading javascript over the original page. The easiest way to do this is to use the console or a plugin like Temper Monkey. For our clients we use tools like Optimizely and Visual Web Optimizer.

Please follow the guidelines in the briefing for Variation B and take note of the following:

- your code should be written and commented in English
- your code should be one piece of code, that can be injected in the browser console
  - don't use any external assets like images

Start your file with the following codeblock:

```
// ==UserScript==
// @name Help Scout intake form Testing.Agency assessment
// @namespace http://helpscout.net
// @version 0.1
// @description Testing.Agency assessment
// @author YOUR NAME
// @match http://www.helpscout.net
// @grant none
// ==/UserScript==

Variant B

Description variant B

1. when a user fills in a textfield and the textfield loses focus, make the textfield green with a checkmark
2. when a user doesn't fill in a textfield, but removes focus, make the textfield red with a cross
3. when the "password" field has focus, show the 5 bulletpoints. This is done by sliding the content below the password textfield down and fading in the bullet points and text. When the password textfield loses focus, the animations are reversed and the bulletpoint text goes away.

4. Validate the first name, only able to input alphabet and delete. And the email is validate on lost focus
5. When user click on “Terms of Services” and “Privacy Policy”, show it on the same page on a modal box, the content is taken from <http://www.helpscout.net/terms-of-service/> and <http://www.helpscout.net/privacy/>. Modal will be closed by a close button and click anywhere outside the modal
